City Schools Resume Monday at 8:30

FISCHER LISTS ASSIGNMENT OF 52 INSTRUCTORS

Skeleton Classes Planned For First Day; Teachers Meet At 2 P. M.

MANY REPAIRS FINISHED

High School To Have Full Time Librarian; Senior Roster Smaller

Circleville schools will resume classes Monday at 8:30 a. m. following the summer vacation. Superintendent Frank Fischer announcing Saturday that classes would be skeletonized and would be conducted until noon. A meeting of all 53 instructors in the school system will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday, and classes will start in earnest Tuesday morning. The teachers will be addressed by the superintendent in the social room of the high school.

High school will get under way with an assembly after which home rooms will be assigned and individual instructions will be provided for the pupils of the four upper grades. Principal J. Wray Henry indicated Saturday that the high school enrollment would probably be 412 pupils, a few less than last year. The graduating class this year will number less than the 86 seniors who were graduated last year.

Numerous improvements have been made in the various schools during the summer, painting and general repair work being completed. The Walnut Street building was painted throughout, new thermostats were placed in the high school, and furnace repairs were general in the schools of the system.

Librarian Provided

For the first time in the school's history a full-time librarian will be on duty. Miss Gretchen Moeller, experienced in library work, will start her new duties Monday. Heretofore various teachers have been in charge of the library duties, changing at the end of each class.

Superintendent Fischer, Saturday, listed teachers' assignments for the year. They follow:

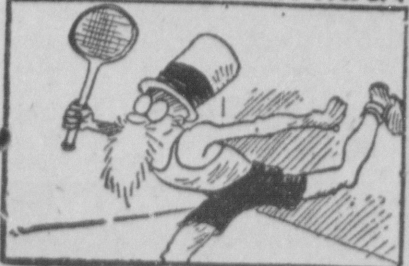

Corwin Street: Florence Hoffman, principal; Mrs. Margaret Mills, Grade 1; Doris Schreiner, 2; Mrs. Bernice Immell, 3; Elizabeth Tolbert, 4; Florence Hoffman, Edna McMahon, Hazel Palm, Mrs. Edith Vierboom, Mary Walters, J. L. Chilcote, Jr., grades 5, 6 and 7; Mrs. Elizabeth Ward, special education 2; Mrs. Bernice Burton, special education 3.

Franklin Street: Lucile Neuding, principal, grade 6; Sally May, 6; Mary K. May, 5; Mrs. Marguerite Weiler, 5; Frances Metzger, 4; Alice Barton, 3; Jeannette Row, 2; Ethel Hussey, 1.

EXECUTION OF EX-KING ASKED

Angered Iron Guard Demands Carol's Life; Premier Pens Notes To Axis Partners

BUCHAREST, Sept. 7—While angry Iron Guard demonstrators begged for the execution of King Carol, Gen. Ion Antonescu, Romania's new dictator, moved swiftly today to align his nation with the Rome-Berlin axis.

With Carol's son, King Michael, now occupying the powerless throne, Antonescu sent messages of loyalty to both Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

To the German Fuehrer he wrote:

"Our first thought on this historic day in which Romania has regained sound strength is to relay assurances of loyalty to the great German people and their great leader.

"With this is coupled confidence in our present safety and our hopes for the future."

To Il Duce in Rome, Antonescu sent this message of greeting:

"On this day in which Latin Romania rises to new strength and freedom, the Romanian people send assurances of their loyalty to the Italian people and their great Duce."

WILLKIE WORKS IN PREPARATION FOR LONG TREK

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 7—In preparation for his grueling western trip, Wendell Willkie today worked over material which he will use in his program of seeing as many people and being seen by as many people as is humanly possible before the end of the campaign.

Since his acceptance speech at Elwood, Willkie has come to two decisions: to make as few set speeches as possible and to trust to personal appearances more than to radio broadcasts.

No presidential candidate in recent years has contemplated such a campaign swing as the Republican nominee is planning. Leaving Rushville next Thursday or Friday the plan is not definite—Willkie will swing out through the midwest to the coast, up the coast from California through Oregon and Washington. Eventually he will wind up in White Plains, N. Y., for the state convention there, then back to Detroit and finally to Rushville—all this in less than a month.

As the itinerary stands at present, the candidate will travel more than 8,000 miles on this trip and as he has already traveled more than 7,000 miles the prospect is that he will do a total of 25,000 to 30,000 miles before ending his campaign.

WHEAT CONTRACTS UP

COLUMBUS, Sept. 7 — Ohio winter wheat contracts with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation increased from 28,767 in 1939 to 35,000 in 1940.

THE appearance of giant four-motored German planes, such as this, in flights over England, gives rise to speculation as to whether the Germans plan to use them as transports for soldiers if—and when—the German army attempts to invade the British Isles.

Action by Scioto Board Needed to Open Orient School With State Aid

Possibility existed Saturday that the county's most recent school controversy, that involving Orient pupils in Scioto Township, may be ended at almost any time. Parents of Orient youngsters are refusing to send their children to Commercial Point despite an order by the Scioto board that such action be taken. The Scioto board voted to close the Orient school because of lack of sufficient pupils to receive state aid.

E. N. Dietrich, director of education for Ohio, said Saturday that he had informed the Scioto Township board that if it decided there were enough pupils ready to enroll in the Orient school to put the attendance above the 15 minimum approved by the state board of control that funds could possibly be provided for its operation.

Average daily attendance last year was nine pupils. Tom A. Renick, attorney for the Orient parents, said Saturday that 41 children are involved this year.

The entire matter is in the Scioto board's hands, Dietrich said, since this body must request state aid for the school before it can be provided.

He said that he had written to Virgil Hill, president of the board, declaring:

"In regard to the school situation at Orient, let it be understood that the State Department has followed the same policy it has for all of the rest of the state of Ohio. That policy has consistently been not to approve for state public school money any one-room school that the year previous showed an average daily attendance of less than 15.

"It has also been our policy when, at the opening of school, due to local conditions the school shows an added enrollment sufficient to justify the opening of it, upon request of local school authorities, our department will approve (and ask the Board of Control to approve) participation in the state public school fund.

"If your school shows that it will have more than 15 enrolled and if you will make the request, indicating in what grades the pupils are enrolled, the department will be glad to act immediately."

The protest strike was started Tuesday when 33 children, reportedly seeking to enroll, appeared at the Orient school instead of reporting at Commercial Point.

PORTSMOUTH AREA CRASH FATAL TO LITTLE GIRL

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 7—Seven-year-old Josephine Leedy was dead and her mother, Mrs. Walter Leedy, 33, of Georges Creek, Ky., was in serious condition today as the result of an automobile accident near Portsmouth. The car in which Mrs. Leedy and her daughter were riding collided with one driven by Chester Fields, of Columbus, the state highway patrol reported. Neither Fields nor Walter Leedy, 37, was injured.

DEMS TO OKEH PLANK TO KILL OHIO SALE TAX

Platform To Be Considered At Close Of Two-Day Convention

PENSION BOOSTS URGED

Sawyer, Kennedy, Others To "Go Along" With Davey In Campaign

COLUMBUS, Sept. 7 — With former bitter political foes presenting a united front publicly, delegates to the Democratic state convention met today to conclude their two-day session with the adoption of the party's 1940 campaign platform.

Despite reported opposition, the convention was expected to approve a platform that would include the following principal planks suggested by the party's gubernatorial nominee, former Gov. Martin L. Davey:

1—Repeal the sales tax which now brings to the state revenue totaling more than $50,000,000 annually.

2—Take steps to insure maximum old age pensions of $40 per month, less income, to all eligible persons.

The convention was to close late this afternoon with a "message" from Davey in which the former chief executive was expected to attack what he often has termed the "hypocritical administration of Governor Bricker."

Sawyer "Good Soldier"

Highlight of the opening day's session was a speech by National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati, in which he promised to "be a good soldier" and support the entire Democratic ticket.

Only indirectly did Sawyer refer to the split in the ranks of the Democratic party brought about when he campaigned against and defeated Davey for the party's nomination in 1938. Sawyer later was defeated by Bricker.

William Kennedy, of Cleveland, former secretary of state who was defeated by Davey for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last May, also told delegates he would "work for the entire ticket." Kennedy declared at the afternoon session, at which he presided, that when the majority of Democrats voted for Davey "that was good enough for me."

Sawyer presided at the session last night. He only mentioned his former political foe in his introduction, when he referred to him as "Governor Davey." Sawyer said, in part:

"I have been asked in a number of ways as to my attitude toward the ticket in this campaign. We hear occasionally of those who 'sit-down' or 'take a walk' and of people who 'run out on the ticket.' My answer is 'I am a good soldier.' Some months ago I stated that I intended to forego any chance to be elected to public office and that (Continued on Page Eight)

ONLY SIX OF 36 CONVICTS STILL FREE IN SOUTH

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 7—All but six of the thirty-six convicts who escaped from Cummins state prison farm, in Arkansas' biggest prison break, were accounted for today.

Those still at large, all of whom were serving prison terms for robbery, are Frank Wilson, 36; Seth Cato, 29; John Ross, 27; Jack Shaw, 25; Joe Miller, 28; and Willie E. Peck, 16, Wilson, who had served previous terms in Arizona and Oklahoma, was also convicted of kidnapping.

Three convicts were forced by hunger to surrender at McGhee, Ark., yesterday, and two others were captured during the day. Previously, twenty one were captured and four were shot to death as posses scoured Arkansas and surrounding states.

HOUSE NEARING VOTE ON DRAFT

Chairman May Says Ballot Before Night Possible; Contest Bitter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—House leaders said today that the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill, which subjects 1,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 45 to one year's military training, will be passed by nightfall.

In spite of bitter battles over amendments and President Roosevelt's criticism of the Fish amendment to postpone induction of draftees for 60 days, leaders said their poll indicated passage of the bill by a "comfortable" majority.

The outstanding new controversy facing the house is the draft-industry proposal which has been condemned by Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell Willkie as leading toward dictatorship and the ultimate draft of labor.

The military affairs committee planned to ask the house to (Continued on Page Eight)

KNOX IN FAVOR OF DEFENSE FOR ISLE OF GUAM

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 7 — Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said today he favors immediate and extensive fortification of the Island of Guam, closest American possession to the Philippines, as a vital part of the United States defense program.

Colonel Knox and his official party arrived at Pearl Harbor late yesterday in a converted four-motored navy bomber after a near record dawn-to-dusk flight from San Francisco. The huge flying boat traveled the 2,225 nautical miles in 14 hours 17 minutes. It was the second fastest flight between the mainland and Hawaii in the history of aviation.

Navy officials disclosed seven destroyers and other vessels were stationed along the route of the flight as "a precaution."

Knox, who came to Honolulu to observe Pacific Fleet maneuvers and inspect naval bases at this "gibraltar of the Pacific," declined comment on whether expansion of Guam fortifications was favored because of possible foreign encroachment in South Asiatic waters.

REICH ADMITS MUCH DAMAGE

Five Different Sections Of City Covered By Smoke After Intensive Attack At Night; At Least 22 Persons Reported Hurt

RAIL DEPOT, BARRACKS OBJECTIVES

Continuous German Raids On London District Reported; Explosive Hits Near Theatre Crowd; Casualties Not Determined

By Pierre J. Huxs

BERLIN, Sept. 7—In the heaviest night raid Berlin has yet experienced, British bombers pounded the German capital for nearly three hours today in an attack that raised fiery clouds of smoke over five different sections of the city.

German sources regarded the raid, featured by terrific anti-aircraft fire and the roar of British planes diving at their targets, as British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's reply to Chancellor Hitler's threat to "eradicate" British cities by bombing raids.

The air raid alarms sounded in Berlin at 15 minutes after midnight and the all-clear signal was not given until 3 a. m. (8 p. m. Circleville time Friday).

One of the areas hit by the R. A. F. bombers was only a 10-minute walk from the Reichstag section in the central part of the German capital.

The raid, German authorities said, had all the earmarks of a systematic attack, evidently designed to prove that the British will not be deterred by Hitler's threats of retaliation.

In view of this, Berlin observers believed, the moment is not far off when retaliatory aerial warfare will begin in earnest.

At least 22 Berliners were known to have been wounded in the night attack, and three killed. Most of the victims were civilians.

In addition, a number of workmen's homes were wrecked.

Garrison Objective

It appeared that the raid was directed chiefly against the Berlin garrison barracks in the Moabit sector of the capitol northwest of the Reichstag, but many incendiaries hit the neighboring criminal courts building, starting a bright blaze on the top floor.

One official was killed and two others were injured when the ceiling collapsed. Prisoners detained in the building were taken down stairs to air raid cellars before the bombs fell.

Visiting the various sections that were bombed, I found the Lehrter railway station — from which one entrains from Berlin en route to America—lighted by flames in the rear. A small warehouse in the adjoining freight yards half a mile from the station had been hit by incendiary bombs. Oddly enough, empty candy boxes were stored in the warehouse.

Late this morning gangs of workmen were still feverishly repairing damages in the Lehrter station area and other districts struck by bombs. All dud and suspected time bombs dropped by the British were removed.

A mile north I found the top story of a six-floor radio factory burning after being hit by incendiaries.

The subway station at the Friedrichstrasse, a few blocks from Berlin's famous central Unterdenlinden, was pierced by a dud flare, which at first was mistaken for a bomb.

Another incendiary set fire to the local city hall in the Weissensee district, but the blaze was extinguished quickly.

Another bomb damaged a police station in the suburb of Tegel. In a northern Berlin district, formerly one of the Communist centers where Nazi stalwarts fought many a street battle in the party's early days, two bombs wrecked scores of windows on Schulzenkorf Street. One landed in the middle of the street car tracks, causing a fairly large crater, and another struck a sidewalk, tearing holes or digging scars in the fronts of two tenement houses.

MOSCOW—Soviet Russia and Germany have concluded a final agreement regarding evacuation of Germans from Bessarabia, the territory ceded to the USSR by Romania. The Germans will be repatriated to the Reich.

LONDON—A Reuters (British) dispatch from Aden said that five natives were killed and 13 injured when raiding planes bombed Aden, British naval base, today. Property also was damaged, the report stated.

TOKYO—The Japanese press today published stern warnings to the United States and Great Britain that Anglo-American cooperation in the Far East is "unwelcome" to Japan.

BERLIN—The Reich government today officially denied British claims that the German troopship Marion had been torpedoed in the Kattegat. (Editor's Note: British estimates earlier this week said some 3,000 lives were lost when the Marion allegedly was sunk.)

HONG KONG — Authoritative Indo-Chinese quarters in Hong Kong confirmed today that Japanese and Indo-Chinese authorities have reached an agreement whereby Japanese troops may pass across Tonkin en route to South China. The agreement stipulates that in making this journey the Japanese forces must remain on the railway right of way.

FRENCH TROOPS, CHINESE CLASH IN INDO-CHINA

VICHY, France, Sept. 7—Fighting broke out between French and Chinese troops last Thursday on the French Indo-China border, a Havas dispatch from Hanoi reported today.

The skirmish began when Chinese troops violated the border, the French news agency reported.

Ten French soldiers were wounded in the ensuing fighting. New French reinforcements were sent to the frontier, it was stated, but there was no indication whether the fighting was continuing.

RED AND BLACK ROUNDING INTO FORM FOR OPENER NEXT FRIDAY

SQUAD IN GOOD PHYSICAL SHAPE FOR IRISH FRAY

Halfback Eby Only Youth Uncertain Because Of Ankle Injury

JOB CONTESTS CONTINUE

Coach Black Not Sure Who Will Get Call For Many First String Tasks

With all his football squad members except one in almost perfect condition physically, Tiger Coach Roy M. Black said Saturday that next week's practice sessions would consist almost entirely of signal drills and blocking and tackling practice in preparation for the opening game next Friday night against Columbus Holy Rosary.

The lone exception from the physical angle is Carl Eby, first string right halfback last year, who has been out of action since early in the practice season with a badly sprained ankle. Eby has been in uniform all this week and has been following the first team through the motions, but Coach Black has not let him mix it at all, fearing to aggravate the injury. Eby may be ready for the opening joust.

Friday's brisk practice session lasted for two hours and when 11 o'clock rolled around all the boys on the squad were ready for rest, because the drill, in addition to being one of the most successful of the early season, was a grueling one as well.

Jenkins Reports Monday

Any boys who have not yet reported for drills will be out after school Monday. The only "new" boy who has a chance to break into the lineup will be Marvin Jenkins, who will be out for his fourth year, the 10-second speedster winning freshman, sophomore and junior letters. He has not practiced yet because of a job that lasts until school starts, but Coach Black believes he will be ready for the going.

Assistant Coach Tom Armstrong will start to help Coach Black, Monday, his contract starting with the opening of school. Armstrong has been employed at the Pickaway Country Club during part of the summer. Linemen can expect plenty of work next week.

And, with the first game only a few days away now, the battle for starting positions continues.

Coach Black uses a different set of ends on the first team line each day, and there is a possibility that the final choice will not be made until the night before the game. Leading contenders remain Trego, Smallwood, Jackson, Carr and Bach, and the nod may go to any two of these five lads. Trego was kicking off for the first string Friday, and his boots were traveling deep into enemy territory.

The first string tackles remain Sabine and Liston, with Zaenglein and Wolf the first replacements, although Beck, second string center, and Sims, an equally good guard, can handle the tackle jobs, too.

Martin, Crawford Likely

"Smash" Martin and Jack Crawford were the first team guards in Friday's workout and indications are that they will get the nod next week, although Sims has been doing well and can take over at any moment. Brintlinger is another ready for guard duty, and behind him are several other boys willing to get into competition at any moment.

Brown will likely start at center, with Beck in second position and the scrappy Cub Valentine in third.

The backfield presents some problems of its own. Gelb appears to be in line for the quarterback call, with Bob Moon and Harry Clifton as replacements.

Left half will be Jenkins at the start, if he is ready, with Moorehead waiting for a chance to show his wares, and the speedy Jim Callahan on deck for action. Moorehead has been at left half since Eby's injury.

Right half offers the coach another task in selecting his starter. Normie Anderson has been drilling at the position all fall, and seemed to have the blocking position all tied up, but Bob Kline, out for the first year, was moved into the spot Friday and showed up to good advantage. This is Eby's favorite post, too, so who will get the call only Mr. Black knows.

Staley has fullback clinched if he keeps up his good work. He is triple-threatener from the word go, and he'll do most of the punting, some of the passing, and a lot of ball totting. Kline has been working at fullback, too, and knows this position probably better than he does right half. Don Sowers, another speedy lad, is in line for

Schmidt Starts Seventh Year As Buckeye Mentor

COLUMBUS, Sept. 7.—When Ohio State's gridders line up against the Pitt Panthers on September 28 in Ohio Stadium for the Bucks' opening game, it will mark the 217th time that Coach Francis A. Schmidt has sent a team into a collegiate grid contest.

Schmidt commences his seventh season as Ohio State's head football coach on September 10, the opening day of the Bucks' pre-season practice sessions. In six years as football headmaster here Schmidt has directed Ohio State to one championship and one undisputed championship in the Western Conference title race.

Between 60 and 70 players will report to Schmidt on the first day of practice to prepare for the most difficult campaign in Ohio State's long football history. Besides playing a full complement of the nation's outstanding teams, the Bucks have the tough chore of defending the Big Ten title they won last season.

Schmidt has already indicated in a general letter to the squad that practice will have to commence at top speed if Ohio State hopes to maintain its high standing. He has repeatedly emphasized that the schedule will allow no let-down from the season's opening whistle to its closing gun.

Four players from the championship 1939 starting lineup have gone the route of graduation leaving seven regulars on hand to form the nucleus of the 1940 team. Several shifts have already been made to strengthen the gaps. Esco Sarkkinen, All-American left end; Stephen Andrack, center; Frank Zadworney, right half; and Vic Marino, left guard are the four regulars who have graduated.

Biggest job that Schmidt faces is building sufficient high quality reserve strength to cope with the unusually difficult schedule which will make strong physical demands on the Scarlet and Gray gridders.

some work at the fullback job, too.

Few Are Certain

But, despite the work the above mentioned boys have been doing, a possibility exists that during the next week some lad who has done little in practice may show up so well that some of the boys who think they have places cinched will be replaced. That is just how difficult it will be for the Tiger mentor to pick his starters. High athletes are first stringers one day and third stringers the next this season.

Many persons who have watched the athletes drill have been enthusiastic about their chances; others have been lukewarm, and still others refuse to pass judgment until they see the team under fire. The outfit promises to be a scrappy one, a little green in spots, not too fast in others, but still one that should provide the cash customers with interesting entertainment this fall.

BIG TEN TO BALLOT ON ROSE BOWL ACCEPTANCE

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The oft-discussed question of whether Western Conference football teams should be permitted to play in the Rose Bowl was up for a decision again today — this time with a good chance for favorable action.

The faculty committee of the Big Ten, which holds the power to reject or accept the proposal, was to hear Prof. W. B. Owens of Stanford University and C. C. May of the University of Washington before taking a vote on the matter.

Directors of the conference urged participation August 28, and asked the faculty committee for an early decision. If the vote today is favorable and no school protests within 60 days, the Rose Bowl series with Pacific Coast teams could begin next January 1.

Although in the past the leading Pacific Coast team has extended direct invitation to a school for the Rose Bowl game, it was understood that the Big Ten would want to select the school to represent it. Presumably, this would be the championship school, but ties for the championship are common.

At present, the Western Conference grid season ends the Saturday before Thanksgiving, and no team is permitted to engage in post-season games.

DEAN BACK WITH CUBS AFTER TULSA SOJOURN

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Pitcher Dizzy Dean, back from a sojourn with Tulsa in the Texas League, today renewed contact with his Chicago Cub mates, and then issued a few predictions.

He predicted he will pitch for the Cubs and beat the Dodgers in Brooklyn next Tuesday; that he will win a couple or so more games yet this year, and that his sore arm trouble will be gone and he will be able to win a lot of games next year.

Dean won seven games and lost nine while hurling for Tulsa.

CONN PUTS KAYO ON BOB PASTOR IN GARDEN RING

Billy May Get Chance At Louis; Low Punches Cut Figure In Contest

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Joe Louis vs. Billy Conn for the world heavyweight championship.

Some of our brighter minds around here are toying with the idea today of arranging the foregoing match, but, if necessary, a law should be passed to stop it.

Weighing only 174 pounds and rather badly man-handled through the first six rounds, Billy Conn's 13-round knockout over Bob Pastor last night did not elevate him into heavyweight contenderhip, but, rather established convincing proof that he wouldn't have the remotest chance against Louis now, and perhaps never.

This all may sound slightly paradoxical, inasmuch as Conn did knock Pastor out, and it may appear to be a little inconsistent on our part in view of our belief that sooner or later Conn would be ready for Louis. All we know now is that his victory over the New York heavyweight proved virtually nothing.

Just What Happened

In fact, trying to sit and rationalize the thing and figure it along sane lines, we still don't know what happened at Madison Square Garden last night to cause Pastor, a game, rugged, fast, experienced fairly good hitting fellow of 180½ pounds, to lose finally by a knockout—the second of his career. Only Louis himself had accomplished so positive a termination of a fight with Pastor before.

In the eighth Pastor dropped his hands twice and claimed low blows, and he was awarded the round. In the ninth, Pastor dropped to his knees and claimed he had been fouled although he had not been hit in the body immediately prior to supplications.

In the 10th he insisted again that he had been hit low. In the 11th Conn didn't land a punch below the neck, and nothing happened. Then in the 12th round, Conn was warned by Referee Cavanaugh to keep his punches up after he had dropped one to the belt-line, and he followed that up by smacking Pastor through the ropes to a knockdown on the apron of the ring, where Pastor lay for a moment before coming back with blood running from his nose.

That seemed to be the finish. In the 13th Conn landed a flurry of body punches topped off by a left hook—also to the middle—and Pastor flatted out for the full count, while the crowd of 14,448 boomed and cheered by turns.

Conn also would have lost this round for low punching, if Pastor had beat the count, Cavanaugh said.

This was the second knockout of Pastor's career. After going the scheduled 10 rounds with Louis in one fight, Pastor lost a 15-round return engagement in the 11th.

And Louis can hit. Conn can't. We encountered some extremely smart and for bright boxing men who insisted that Conn low-punched his way to victory, turning the tide in the seventh with out of bounds shots that softened Pastor up and clinching the thing with subsequent attacks to the groin.

It didn't look that way to us, but here are the facts: Pastor doubled over and claimed he had been fouled in the seventh, but Referee Billy Cavanaugh ignored him.

Tigers Sweep Three Tilt Series; New York Halted

By Ed Klely

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Manager Del Baker's Detroit Tigers made the New York Yankees take a back seat today in the thunderous American League pennant drive after shellacking the league-leading Cleveland Indians three days in succession.

The Tigers, bothered by injuries all season and at present forced to play Catcher Billy Sullivan at third base, bounded into second place only a game back of the crying Clevelanders by tripping the Tribe, 10 to 5, to make a clean sweep of the series.

The Indians, who held another of their secret strategy meetings without Manager Oscar Vitt's knowledge, played like a bunch of schoolboys yesterday. The Tigers sewed the game up in the fifth when four runs scored on one hit. Three walks, an error and a double accounted for three runs and lumberous Rudy York stole home with the other marker while Pitcher Al Milnar stood holding the ball.

Gerry Walker Hits

The great Yankee drive was halted temporarily when the Washington Senators, helped by Gerry Walker's two home runs, grabbed off a 3 to 1 victory. Southpaw Ken Chase performed nobly in the clutches and was helped out of some serious spots by three rapid double plays. The defeat sent the Yankees tumbling back to third place, six percentage points behind the Bengals and two games off the top.

In the only other game in the junior circuit, Johnny Rigney pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 6 to 3 victory over the St. Louis Browns. Rigney allowed only four scattered safeties to chalk up his 13th victory of this season. Philadelphia and Boston were not scheduled.

In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers cut the idle Cincinnati Reds' lead down to seven games by beating the Philadelphia Phillies, 3 to 0 and 14 to 3, in a double header to make a clean sweep of a four-game series.

Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons won his 14th pitching victory by shutting out the Phillies in the opener. Joe Medwick, finally snapping a batting slump, homered in the third of the opener with two men on base to account for all Brooklyn's runs. In the nightcap Medwick, paced an 18 hit attack with another homer, this one coming when the bases were filled.

Lefty Clyde Shoun pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6 to 4 victory over his old teammates, the Chicago Cubs. Terry Moore's homer in the seventh proved the deciding blow in this contest. The other clubs were not scheduled.

DERRINGER, ROOT MEET IN CHICAGO CUB PARK

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Seven games in front of the pack, the Cincinnati Reds today moved into Chicago for a series with Phil Wrigley's Cubs. Paul Derringer was expected to hurl the opener for the Reds. He was to be opposed by Charley Root. The league leaders had a day off yesterday.

LEADING BATTERS American: Radcliff, Browns 348; Appling, White Sox 340; Williams, Red Sox 339. National: Walker, Dodgers 326; F. McCormick, Reds 322; Rowell, Bees 322.

this time it is really ready to step out and show something.

In the southwest—which is probably the toughest league of them all — Texas Aggies are going to make a determined bid to take another championship despite the fact that no team has ever repeated in that league. Southern Methodist and Texas Christian are expected to make strong comebacks after somewhat disappointing seasons.

We are told that Biff Jones' Nebraska squad will be a sensation this fall. Biff, of course, being an old Army man, will discourage all optimistic reports, but others from that section say he has a world of material and should go unbeaten.

Glowing reports reach us from the west coast where it seems they all expect to be stronger. Southern California expects to make its third straight trip to the Rose Bowl; California is better; U. C. L. A. really has something with which to face a tough schedule; Stanford's new coach, Clark Shaughnessy hopes to have a much stronger squad and they tell us Tex Oliver is quite proud of his Oregon team.

RED BIRDS AND MILLERS CLIMB ON KANSAS CITY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 7.—With the American Association regular season closing a week from Sunday, the fight for the pennant today took on the aspects of a three team fight.

The Columbus Red Birds moved to within three and one-half games and the Minneapolis Millers to within five and one-half games of the league leading Kansas City club as the result of play last night.

The Red Birds, behind the seven-hit hurling of Tom Sunkel, took a thriller from Indianapolis, 1 to 0. Bob Logan, celebrating his sale to the Cincinnati Reds, allowed the Birds only six hits, two of which came in the eighth inning after two were out for the Columbus marker.

Minneapolis, meanwhile, was taking Kansas City into camp twice, by 9 to 7 and 8 to 0 scores. The Millers came from behind in the opener, scoring four runs in the last two frames to take the decision. In the nightcap, Tauscher allowed the Blues only five hits while his teammates were cracking out 10 off two Blue hurlers.

In other games, Milwaukee edged St. Paul 10 to 9 and Toledo defeated Louisville 6 to 3.

HEROES AND GOATS

HEROES—Gerry Walker, Senators, who hit two home runs to give Washington a victory over New York; Joe Medwick, Dodgers, whose homer in the first game of a doubleheader with the Phillies enabled Freddie Fitzsimmons to annex his 14th victory.

GOATS—Roy Bell, Indians, who booted a grounder which helped the Tigers beat league-leading Cleveland for the third straight time; Charley Ruffing, Yankees, who threw two home run balls to Walker and batted into a double play to end a ninth-inning rally.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: Would it be possible to propagate a slip from a Koster blue spruce and if so what is the best plan in the undertaking? G. C., New Martinsville, W. Va.

ANSWER: The various varieties of spruces are normally propagated by grafting. Since this is a greenhouse operation and difficult even under the best of conditions, it is not practical for the home gardener to attempt it. Although on the Pacific Coast some of the spruces are propagated by cuttings, it is very seldom that this is possible in the Midwest.

QUESTION: I have a hardy sweet pea that is very bushy and I would like to know if I could thin it out and transplant it and when it should be done, spring or fall. Mrs. I. R., Cincinnati.

ANSWER: The hardy pea, which can hardly be called sweet pea since it has no fragrance, may be transplanted either in the spring or anytime within the next month or two. If you find that it becomes too dense, I would merely dig part of it and leave the desired amount.

QUESTION: I am sending you a sample of my gladiolus. They grew nicely until the last of June. Did the blight strike them or are they diseased? They were nice last year and in the same place they are this year. Would the bulbs be good next year? Our peony bloomed last year but this year the buds formed, then died. Will you please tell us what to do for it? We have it on the south side of the house. Mrs. L. B., Plainfield.

ANSWER: Your gladiolus are infected with thrip, a small insect. These can be controlled very easily this fall after digging them by putting one ounce of naphthalene flakes with each hundred gladiolus corms. Put them in paper sacks with a rubber band around the top of the sack. After three weeks, take the corms out and put them in open trays or boxes so that they may air. You can keep them this way the rest of the winter. If you do not treat them this fall, you will find the thrips will be eating the bulbs throughout the winter and you will have an even worse infestation next year.

With the spring as wet as the last one, there was a large amount of peony blight. Sometime during October or November, I would suggest you cut off all your peony leaves and burn them, and next spring before new growth starts drench the ground around the crown of each plant with some copper spray such as bordeaux mixture. This normally will control the blight.

QUESTION: Could you give me directions for building a small inexpensive hothouse? J. McC., Dayton.

ANSWER: The directions for building a small greenhouse are rather involved, so I suggest you write to the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. for Farmers' Bulletin 1318, Greenhouse Construction and Heating.

QUESTION: I am enclosing two lily leaves and would appreciate knowing the names of them. I had these lilies planted in a semi-shady spot for two years but they are not doing so well, therefore I would like to know if they can be transplanted and when. I was told by someone that I should not transplant them this year because I have only had them planted for two years. I would also appreciate any information you could give me regarding peonies. I would like to buy a climbing rose, ever-blooming, and would appreciate your comment as to whether they are worth while, C. S., Cincinnati.

ANSWER: Since there are more than 50 different kinds of lilies in cultivation, many with very similar foliage, it is impossible to identify a lily, with but one or two exceptions, from a single labors, fidelity and sterling character. This may be attended by some drastic activity, surprising and exciting moments, in which elders, superiors, and old institutions or organizations may figure, but be not carried away in possible upheavals to the point of eccentric behavior.

COLUMBUS DAY NO HOLIDAY

HARTFORD, Conn. — Although Columbus Day is a legal holiday in Connecticut, selectmen and town clerks in the state must hold sessions on October 12 for the admission of new voters.

This was the recent ruling of State Attorney General Francis A. Pallotti. He pointed out that the statute specifically designated the fourth Saturday before election day as the one on which new voters must be examined.

For Saturday, September 7, SUBSTANTIAL returns may be expected on this day in token of sound and stable ventures developed by steadfastness, prudence, persistence and hard work. PACIFIC AIR BASES

THE nation need not have been so surprised at the President's agreement with Great Britain to swap destroyers for air and naval bases in British possessions on this side of the Atlantic. There had been a number of suggestions that such a deal was at least being discussed and there was much evidence that it would be looked upon with favor by a majority of Americans.

It is generally accepted that, although Congress and many private citizens would have preferred to have the job accomplished with "the advice and consent of the Senate", nevertheless it should not be thrown out now on that ground.

And now, it is reported, similar bases are being canvassed in the Pacific. Whether or not there is anything to "swap" for them—always remembering the unsettled debts of the last war—no doubt an agreement will be reached. Here, however, Americans hope that the bases will not be too far out toward the Asiatic side. They want adequate defense against attack from the Orient, but they do not want it spread out too thin or too provocatively.

HERO HYSTERIA

NOT all the hysteria in this country centers on war. The other day the normally sane inhabitants of a populous industrial city took time out from discussion of war, the national election, the baseball pennant race, and the opening of public schools to go crazy over the presence "in person" of Mickey Rooney. Perhaps we should say "Andy Hardy," for it is in that role that the youthful star has become, as one reporter said, the nation's "first heart beat." The glamor boys of the screen have their devoted admirers, as always. But Andy Hardy's admirers seem to number millions to the other stars' thousands. And they include boys and girls and fathers and mothers, and doubtless grandparents.

Anyhow, Mickey's pictures provide wholesome and cheerful entertainment and their popularity must prove something or other about the wholesome character of the average American. The hysteria appears in the mobs that follow at Mickey's heels and push and shove to get near enough to touch him and to ask for autographs. This phenomenon is not confined to the Rooney following. It will be an improvement in public psychology when there is less of that sort of thing.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up feeling mighty fit and with a minimum of worries. Not even the war news could put a damper on me, or political reports, either. Scanned the front page and worked through to sports and markets, finding some items of interest and many that failed to halt me. Strange it is how little I care about what is happening in Columbus.

Headed for the post a half hour earlier than usual and passed Meeker Terwilliger swinging along and so much enjoying his morning constitutional that I lacked the heart to offer him a lift. Picked up a heavy load at the post and at the office found little of it to be of consequence. Many communications from political office seekers, and much of political tinge. Then the usual quota of sales communications. Newspapers always drag out the really big waste baskets about this time of year.

Pitched a lighted cigaret into my bulging basket and a salesman who was with me picked it out and extinguished the flag's ember. Said I must have forgotten and might have started a fire. Told him that for 20 years I have been trying to start a waste basket fire with a cigaret and not yet have succeeded. One time did win $10 from an advertising man who thought I was wrong. He dropped forty lighted cigarettes in on the paper and even turned a fan onto the basket without effect. So, when I read a news story of how a cigaret tossed on paper started a fire I always grin. I know it can not be done. I have tried it many thousand times.

Visited the Tigers' gridiron and saw in practice what undoubtedly is our best football team of many seasons. Glimpsed Frank Lynch, entirely shirtless and enjoying both the sun and practice. Saw the Rev. Bob Kelsey who has done such a grand job of popularizing the Presbyterian church and who ranks as high as any minister I know in public esteem. Here comes Red Crayne, just back from a trip up and down the West Coast and who learned much of interest about our national defense at the California session of Veterans of Foreign Wars.

There goes Joe Wheeler, real estate man and former theatre manager, just back from an extended Eastern visit and living only by the grace of God. Joe had a business appointment in Cleveland and made airplane reservations. A telephone call postponed the business meeting and Joe gave up his reservations. The plane he was to have ridden crashed and killed 25.

Chatted with Ray Rowland and found that as usual the local plant of the Ralston Purina Co. knows about the depression only by hearsay. That is generally true of all our industries. I have heard interesting stories of contemplated expansion by one of our industries, but no confirmation as yet.

Then I turned an angry ear toward one of the silliest rumors of all times that a local petition had been circulated to prevent establishment of that munitions factory in our district. According to the rumor our local manufacturers instituted the petition. I wonder why it is that so many folk refuse to think before they talk. The only petition, except political, that I have known anything about in many long months is for the elimination of that terrible stench in the east end of town. Probably that munitions petition rumor was started by someone in explanation of why he is not working. And my bet is that he wouldn't work if he had a chance.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WILKIE SOUNDED OUT

WASHINGTON—The inside story of how the swap of 50 over-age destroyers for British island bases was arranged is a long and complicated one. It goes back about six weeks, when Roosevelt partially turned the idea down.

At that time, the British wanted to buy the destroyers outright—a cash deal. The President vetoed this on the ground that there was no legal way for him to sell the ships for cash, even though they would be of indirect help to the United States by bolstering the resistance of the British Navy.

The President was urged to make the sale by such friends as Cordell Hull, Supreme Court Justices Frankfurter and Murphy, Senator Jimmy Byrnes and several others. However, he stood firm that the ships could not be sold outright.

Later, the idea of trading the destroyers for island bases was conceived. This the President felt was all right, provided the Justice Department considered it legal. So he hurriedly called Attorney General Jackson back from vacation and asked him to study the matter carefully.

Also the President suggested that Wendell Willkie might be sounded out in advance regarding the deal, so that it would not become a football of campaign politics.

Accordingly, several friends of Roosevelt's got in touch with friends of Willkie's, including John Hanes, ex-Under Secretary of the Treasury; William Allen White; and Lew Douglas, former Director of the Budget. However, they made no progress, and Willkie at one time kicked over the traces and issued a public statement that he would express his views only to the President personally, and only if the President asked for them.

Willkie would not say that he disapproved of the destroyer transfer. In fact, he indicated that he approved it. But he was absolutely firm that he would not commit himself in advance, especially in the Elwood acceptance speech, in which his friends wanted him to include a specific reference to destroyers.

The furthest he would go was to put a statement in his Elwood speech emphasizing the importance of the British navy to American defense.

REPUBLICAN ADVICE

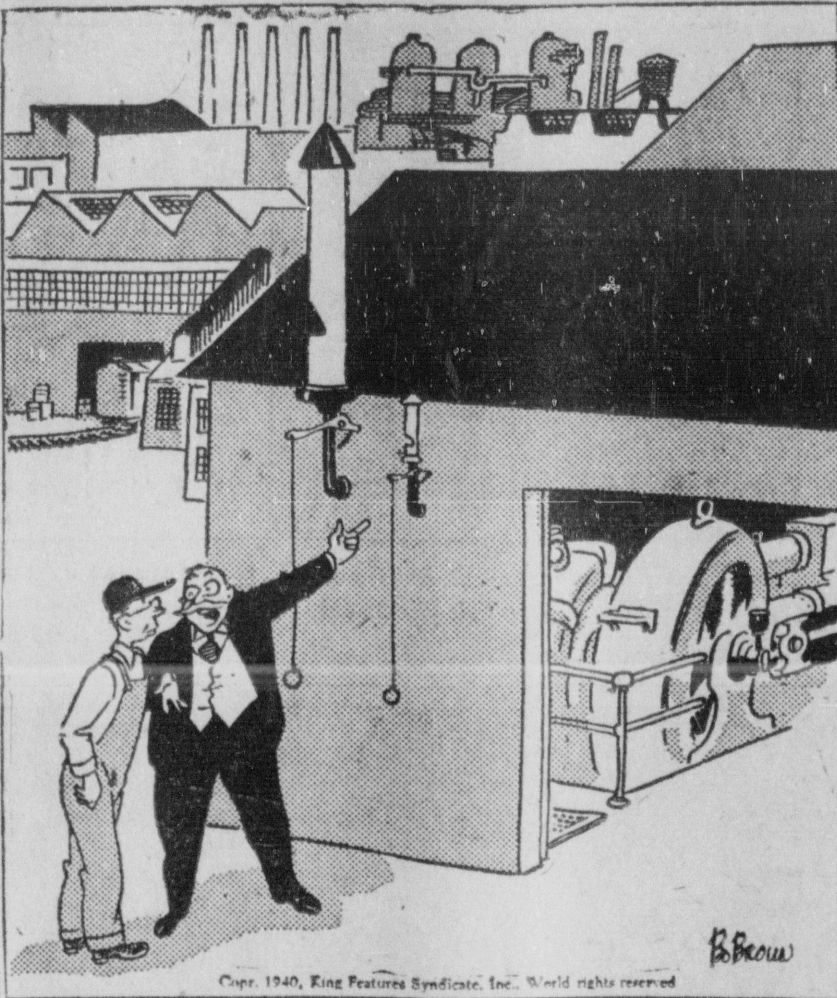

By this time Roosevelt's emissaries also had sounded out congressional leaders, including Republicans and isolationists, and the advice they received was interesting. Both groups were unanimous that the President should arrange the destroyer-British island deal himself, and not ask the approval of Congress.

They gave two reasons for this: (1) that the proposal never would pass Congress in time to give any help to the British; (2) that a congressional debate would put many of them on the spot, perhaps force them to vote against the plan.

Even Senator Wheeler of Montana, vigorous isolationists, advised along these lines.

Heart Ills Are Easy to Detect Now

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

FOR THE examination of the heart, modern medicine has many efficient methods. In fact, it may be said that except for the diseases of the eye, the modern physician is better equipped to form an exact and mathematical concept of the heart than of any other organ in the body.

This examination consists of first getting the patient's history, finding out what infections he has had, and whether on any particular occasion of sudden strain or exertion the heart failed to respond to the demands put upon it—its failure being exhibited either by pain or shortness of breath.

The instrumental examination with the stethoscope, the x-ray and the blood pressure apparatus will give the alert physician a very clear conception of whether there is any organic change in the heart or circulatory system—any enlargement of the heart, any valvular incompetency or obstruction, any hardening of the arteries which impose an extra burden on the heart's action.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Recording Changes
Then, with the instrument known as the electrocardiograph, a record can be made of the electrical changes in the heart muscle during contraction which give an indication of the smoothness with which the muscular action of the heart is being carried on. The heart is nothing but a hollow muscle, designed to do work. It does very hard work, as much in a day as many engines or machines, and in order to do it, the muscular action must coordinate in a certain way. When this coordination is disrupted, either from irritation by poisons or nervous stimulation, or because of excessive strain or weakness of the muscle itself, more or less serious consequences may follow. All these things the electrocardiograph can detect and often safeguard.

READ THIS FIRST:

Gun Cotton, famous Scotland Yard agent, becomes interested in a stranger, who calls himself Pullinger, and has an agent assigned to follow him, but the latter loses the trail. Gun's superior, known only as X, is interested also, but assigns Cotton to the case of a missing bomber. The agent goes to a new "hush-hush" station where new and secret types of military planes are tested. When Gun goes up with Squadron Leader Hazeldene in a heavily guarded plane, which supposedly contains important secrets of construction and equipment, but really does not, he gets a radio message to meet another plane, G.1313.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

GUN REPLIED, repeated the radio message, and announced plenty of gasoline. The reply came back:

"Then carry on, and follow instructions precisely."

Gun waited a few minutes, then sent out the code signal to X. Got his reply.

"G. calling X. G. calling X. Received following message in W. O. code A.S." (Followed repeat of message.) "Await your instructions, Tony, Tony."

Came the reply:

"Tony, Tony. X to G. X to G. Message bogus, but follow instructions exactly. Also any others given in same code. Keep in touch with me. Acknowledge and repeat."

Gun did so, and added a query: "Any further instructions?" Reply came:

"Cannot instruct—do not know what will happen. Believe an effort is being made to lure you away, as the missing bomber was lured away last week. Must leave everything to your discretion. Find out as much as you can. Keep in touch as long and as often as possible! Good luck!"

To which Gun replied:

"Message received and understood. Will do my best."

The plane, headed for Cape Clear, went throbbing lazily through the night.

Out in the North sea a 600-ton yacht forged steadily through the heavy swell. She was an excellent sea boat, and the condition of the sea did not prevent laughing people from dancing on the after deck to the music of radio.

Somebody asked where the owner, their host, had gone, and someone else replied:

"Oh, he's all right. Fiddling about in the radio room, as usual, I expect. He's quite mad on radio just now!"

"Well," laughed the other, "we all have our own method for our own madness! But I must say that mine is a long way from a stuffy radio cabin—on a night like this, this."

If, as was suggested, the owner was mad on radio, there would seem to have certainly been some method in his madness. For at the moment two tense, rather grim-faced men were sitting in the yacht's small radio cabin. Outside the closed door, a third man—one of the yacht crew—stood on guard, and the right-hand pocket of his pea jacket bulged ominously—which showed that the owner, who was one of the men locked in the cabin, took no chances!

The owner's companion in the radio room was acting as operator, with a pair of earphones clipped on his head.

After a moment or two he took them off, and looked across at the owner, with a nod.

"It is well. He has repeated the message, and says he will follow instructions. He has no suspicions!"

The owner gave a grunt of satisfaction, and his small, pale eyes lit up with triumph.

"Splendid—splendid! It works like a charm, you see—and a second bird comes into our little net! Ha, ha . . . !"

He stopped short in his laugh, and looked thoughtful, then said:

"Get in touch again. Find out today. Your health will be good throughout the year, and you will be happy in your domestic sphere. Born on this date a child will have a serious, scientific and profound mind, and will be courageous, ambitious, magnetic and possessed of much charm of manner.

Hints on Etiquette
When walking with two ladies, a man should walk on the outside, not between the ladies.

Horoscope for Sunday
The next year will be propitious for those celebrating birthdays today. It promises gain through elders and business dealings in property. A tendency toward extravagance should be checked. A child born today should be trained to restrain its natural inclination to speak out of turn. Such a child will be active, energetic and industrious, but too frank and outspoken, thereby causing the displeasure of superiors, unless trained otherwise.

SETS FIRE TO SCHOOL
TOKYO, Japan—One way not to fall in your scholastic examinations is to set fire to the school. That is what Miss Gjinjin Sai, a Korean girl student of the Kyoritsu Women's Medical College here, did. Police investigation finally linked her with the fire, however, and she confessed.

The little scout X. O. O. flew steadily in the direction given them.

how high he is flying. It is as well that the engines should not be heard too well down below. That way they might get some trace!"

"Very good!"
The other clipped on his phones again, and turned to the Morse key, tapping out steadily:

"X. O. O. . . . X. O. O. . . . X. O. O. . . ."

"Hello, Tommy! Got another message through from the W. O. (alleged). They want to know what our altitude is. What does she register, Tommy? Over."

The answer came back:

"Hullo, Gun, just one thousand, two hundred and fifty!"

Gun tapped out the message and, after a short pause the reply came through:

"Rise to two thousand five hundred. Do not fly below that until you sight plane!"

Gun passed the message on to Tommy, who replied in his usual chummy style:

"O. K., Chief. Up we go!"
And Gun rapped out:

"Message received and noted. We now are rising to altitude two thousand five hundred feet."

In the radio cabin of the yacht the operator chuckled:

"He's taking it like a lamb! Now rising to two thousand five hundred!"

"Good!" said the owner, briskly. "Now get Z.17!"

The operator bent over his key, and the owner reached for a pad, and commenced to write rapidly.

"Z.17 replies, sir!"
"Right. Here is the message!"

Translated, it read:

"Z.1, North sea, to Z.17. Mystery plane X. O. O. on way to Cape Clear. Arrives there about half-hour before dawn, flying at approximately two thousand five hundred. Then proceeds slowly W. S. W. Pick up there at that time. After that proceed precisely as on last occasion. Acknowledge and repeat. Report again when in air."

Some twenty minutes later another message came through:

"Z.17 to Z.1, North sea. Now p in G.1313, and proceeding in direction indicated."

"Good!" said the owner. "Tell him to report again at dawn, or before if any reason for it. I shall be here again before then, but let me know if anything important comes through!"

The owner unlocked the door and left the cabin, returning the rather official salute of the man on guard at the door. Then he rejoined his guests, smiled gently at a burst of chaff leveled against his radio hobby.

Meanwhile, through the silent, star-lit night, the little scout X. O. O. flew steadily in the direction given them. Gun had reported the further message in regard to altitude, and now had nothing to do but to keep his eyes and ears on the radio receiver, and to watch the glory of the stars.

They seemed very near, he thought—and it struck him, rather grimly, that he and Tommy Hazeldene might be a good deal nearer to them before many hours were past. But, as usual, he didn't allow possibilities of that sort to cause him any unnecessary disturbance. After all, such situations were by no means new to him—although, as Tommy had very aptly put it, they certainly were "flying blind" on this occasion!

In an office in Whitehall court, overlooking the river, three men sat around a table. All were smoking, and all looked rather worried. One of them was a high official of the War Office, the second a similarly high functionary of the Air Force. The third, calm, enigmatic, untroubled, was X himself.

"Well," said the Air Force, after a brief pause. "All's going well so far. But it certainly seems to me the right thing to do is to send a couple or more fighting planes to catch these infernal pirates red-handed, and to deal with them!"

But X shook his head and answered gently:

"If we do that we scare them off for good and all. And we shall never be any wiser as to just who they are, or what their real object is."

"At least we could shoot them down, if not capture them!"

X's smile was rather weary—he had been working on strain for days, and was feeling tired.

"You may be quite sure that, whoever is at the bottom of this business, they are prepared for all ordinary eventualities. And the shooting down or capture of their plane would be one of these. Even if the machine did not burn, we should find no evidence in it!"

"But if we could capture the men . . . !"

Garden Club Gathers At Jones Home

45 Members Enjoy Fine Address By Columbus Man

Walter Burwell of Columbus gave an illustrated talk on "Featured Gardens" at the first fall session of the Pickaway County Garden Club Friday at the home of Mrs. Richard Jones, Saltcreek Township. Forty-five members and several guests were present for the interesting event.

Mr. Burwell mentioned in opening his talk that each one likes to carry out individual ideas in designing and use of flowers and shrubs in making a garden. His first illustrations were gardens of homes in Cleveland including the home and garden of A. Donald Grey, a landscape artist. Looking out from the windows of his home, the formal garden with its outside wings of hemlock was seen, with an informal garden of perennials and annuals back of the wings.

He showed an English type garden also in Cleveland, with stately evergreens, and a garden of Mrs. Altmeyer, with Norway spruce as a background and tulip beds on each side leading to a well head in a setting of hemlocks and covered with ivy.

Mr. Burwell discussed Virginia gardens and the effort being made to restore some of the older gardens by the various garden club groups. He showed pictures of the James Monroe, Thomas Jefferson, York Hall and Edgar Allen Poe gardens, and also one of the home gardens at the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson.

Pictures of the blue and white garden, the Flemish garden and the formal English garden at the New York World's Fair were shown as well as several Columbus gardens. M. E. Noggle assisted in showing the slides.

Mrs. Noggle, the newly elected president, called the meeting to order, receiving the reports of Mrs. R. F. Lilly, secretary, and Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, treasurer.

Announcement was made of the meeting of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs which will be at Chillicothe, September 20 and 21. Mrs. Clara Belle Spangler and Mrs. Howard Heffner were new members received at the meeting, after which Mrs. Donald H. Watt, chairman of the program committee, presented the guest speaker.

After the interesting talk, the guests were asked to the dining room where refreshments were served from a table centered with a large brass bowl of mixed flowers, matching candle holders being at either end. Many vases of lovely flowers were used in the room, making a colorful setting for the social hour. The flowers were from the gardens of members, including Harry Swearingen and Mrs. C. M. Beatty.

Miniature arrangements of flowers were displayed, Mrs. Watt's vase being judged the best, with those of Mrs. Beatty and Miss Ruth Morris receiving honorable mention.

Mrs. Jones was assisted by Mrs. E. O. Crites, Mrs. F. K. Blair, Mrs. Lloyd Jones and Mrs. John Mast.

Rehearsal Supper

Mrs. Carl Younklin of Commercial Point delightfully entertained Miss Mary Irene Pontius and Mr. Floyd Younklin and members of their bridal party at a buffet supper Friday following their wedding rehearsal at 7 p. m. in the Avondale United Brethren Church, Columbus. Their marriage will take place at 6:30 o'clock Saturday.

Mrs. Younklin used late summer flowers in decorating her home for the informal affair.

In addition to Mr. Younklin and his bride-elect, those present were Mrs. Dwight Dunkle, Pickaway Township, matron of honor, Miss Lola Faye and Miss Marjorie Younklin and Mr. Carl Younklin, Commercial Point, bridesmaids and best man, Mr. Charles O'Hara, Commercial Point, Mr. Kenneth Green, Columbus, ushers, Little Barbara Ruth Pontius, flower girl and ring bearer, and a few additional close friends.

Bible Class Meets

Fifteen members and three visitors attended the meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Bible Class Friday at the home of Mrs. G. H. Colvill and Miss Clara Southward, West Franklin Street. Mrs. Laura Bentley, Mrs. William Blaney and Mrs. Elizabeth Traphagen were the guests.

Mrs. Colvill, president, opened the meeting with devotional reading and prayer. The class welcomed to the meeting, Mrs. Ira May of Wayne Township a former teacher of the group.

The program consisted of short selected readings and talks by class members. Group singing of

A BIG RED APPLE FOR TEACHER

BACK TO the privileges of a free education in a democracy go millions of children next week—most of them, alas, unaware of blessings at their tender age. Indian Summer will call to them through open windows and taking the dog for an autumnal romp will seem much more sensible to budding students than learning to spell him.

Which brings us to the point: lightweight, washable clothes for first schooldays, with coats and hats adding the needed warmth to combat the earlier, cooler twilight.

It is almost impossible to be so unlucky as to buy little frocks which will melt in the laundry—fast color, minimum shrinkage, firm stitching are standard equipment mostly. But if you make sure that your daughter's dresses are plainly marked pre-shrunk to a fractional minimum, you can be sure of the color fastness too and rest easy after this slight duty toward her.

The reefer coat remains the most popular—and the most becoming—to most little girls. Many of the season's models have a handy hood buttoned to their collars, permitting the child a choice between hat and hood. Such a coat does for day or Sunday school; infant jigger coats of padded corduroy or flannel, cardigans perhaps with a twin slipcover, are good mild weather weekday coverings.

The way to prevent colds is to dress the child in layers which may be added or subtracted as the thermometer goes through its customary acrobatics just before the frost hits the punkin for good. Thinner frocks, thicker topcoats, turn the trick.

A full skirt with plenty of action width gathered beneath a bodice which closes to the throat makes this cotton, sanforized-shrunk dress a pleasure to girl and laundress alike. Colorful, fast-set stripes.

This is a Hollywood star—little Joan Carroll of RKO—who primps out in a navy serge reefer which has embroidered plique, detachable collar and cuffs. Her soft felt hat is sky blue. Just fine for wash or wool frocks.

Vincent has arrested Leman Huston, 44, Adelphi, charging Huston with having sold a stolen calf, valued at $14, to Millard Christy, of Circleville, July 17. Washington Merry-Go Round was digging into the question of Roosevelt's right to make the transfer. And behind the scenes, it was aided by a prominent Republican and former Solicitor General, Judge Thomas Day Thacher; also by Dean Acheson, former Under Secretary of the Treasury. They helped to dig up the precedent of the Louisiana Purchase.

Thus the stage finally was set and ready for the announcement of last Tuesday.

NOTE—Despite the fact that Republican leaders in both House and Senate advised Roosevelt not to ask for congressional approval, Willkie issued a statement criticizing Roosevelt for not submitting the matter to Congress.

NORRIS' REUNION

It's 1191 miles from Washington to a quiet lake at Waupaca, Wis., and 1191 miles back again, which is a lot of miles for anyone to motor for a class reunion. But it didn't daunt 79-year-old George Norris, Nebraska's grand old Senator.

Accompanied by his son-in-law, Jack Robinson, who did the driving, Norris left the Capital on Thursday and was back in his seat the following Wednesday noon, when the Senate reconvened after the Labor Day recess.

For 58 years he has made this sentimental journey. And this year, although worn by nearly twelve months of continuous legislative work, he was determined to make no exception.

Only two members now remain of that class of 1883 at Valparaiso (Ind.) University which pledged on graduation day to meet every year—and kept the pledge. Last year three were present, but this year Norris' only reunion mate was E. E. Smith, retired Fort Dodge merchant.

The reunion was celebrated with a banquet, attended by townsfolk and relatives, and the highlight of the evening was a three-page printed program in which were brief messages from the two venerable guests of honor.

SECRET ORDER

Wrote Norris, "The L. U. N., once a democracy, now is within one of a dictatorship." The roll-call on page two read:

G. W. NORRIS, C. W. E. E. SMITH, V. W. No Privates

Just what "L. U. N.", "C. W.", and "V. W.", stand for, no one has ever found out. It remains a class secret. Norris' friends think L. U. N. stands for Loyal United Nine, but this is only a guess.

As had been the practice for 58 years, the L. U. N. held the annual secret pow-wow before the banquet. And Norris and Smith closed the meeting with L. U. N. song, one verse of which is:

"Out from among the memories
Of school days past and gone,
We cherish the remembrance
Of lasting friendships formed."

R. C., SAN FRANCISCO—U. S. exports to Germany have almost completely dried up. For the first six months of this year, the figure was only $153,000, compared with $50,000,000 during the same period of 1939. In June of this year there were no exports to Germany whatever. Moreover, U. S. officials believe that Germany is not getting U. S. goods through Russia, but that Russia is buying for herself only . . . P. N. & W. TO SPEND $745,000 ON IMPROVEMENT IN SCIOTO DIVISION

SIGNAL SYSTEM TO BE CHANGED TO HALT DELAY

Portsmouth-Columbus Lines To Be Modernized; Safety Aids Is Cited

OCTOBER TO SEE START

Automatic Sub-Stations To Be Provided In Case Of Emergency

A $745,000 project to completely modernize the Norfolk and Western Railway's signal system between Portsmouth and Columbus was announced Saturday by railway officials, who explained that the new signal system increases safety of train operations and will eliminate train delay.

Work will begin on the job in the latter part of October and is expected to be completed in July, 1941. The project is a part of the railway's $28,000,000 improvement program for 1940.

Installation of position-light automatic signals with coded track circuit control between the two cities will replace old semaphore type signals, which are now controlled by what is known as polarized line circuits. The power transmission line will be made three-phase between Chillicothe and Columbus, replacing the 2,200-volt single phase power transmission line between these points, providing sufficient additional capacity for the operation of automatic signals, interlockings, station lighting, switch lighting and electrically driven pumps at water stations.

Additional overhead ground wire on transmission pole line with latest lightning protective apparatus will be installed in order to obtain further continuity of signal operation. Automatic sub-stations will be constructed between Portsmouth and Columbus so that in case of a power outage at any one of the three sources of supply, the other station or stations will be automatically cut in at approximately five-tenths of a second, without causing any interruptions to signal operations, and therefore no delays to train movement.

POLICE HUNTING BURGLARS WHO INVADDED STORE

Circleville police and members of the sheriff's department were searching, Saturday, for clues which might lead to the capture of a person or persons who broke into Gallaher's Drug Store, West Main Street, Thursday night and stole merchandise valued at nearly $80. Among articles stolen were cigarettes, chewing gum, watches, candy and films.

Police Chief William McCrady, who said that he and his department began work on the case as soon as they had been notified Friday afternoon, continued his search until late Friday night.

Evidence indicated, the chief said, that the theft was done by youths who had pried open a rear sky light which opened into the kitchen. The intruders had then pried open a door and entered the store.

Among the missing articles was a suit case, which authorities believed had been filled with stolen goods and carried away. The loot has not yet been recovered.

Police Chief McCrady said that he had called police at Columbus and Chillicothe and was sending them lists of the articles reported stolen.

Authorities believe that the same persons who had broken into the Gallaher store were responsible for entering the Tabernacle at the Mount of Praise Camp grounds on East Ohio Street Thursday night and gathering up two sacks of articles, including food and candy, which they had hid in the building, apparently to return for it later. Officers stationed at the grounds Friday night reported that no one appeared.

Thursday night's robbery at the Gallaher store is almost identical with the one of June 15 when two local boys, Hobart Payne, 17, who lives on the Lancaster Pike, and Harley (Peck) Smith, 15, South Court Street, broke into the store through a rear transom and stole miscellaneous articles including cigarettes, flashlights, razors, tobacco and watches.

The youths were captured June 16th by police, and sent to Boy's Industrial School at Lancaster after they had been convicted of petty larceny before Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon.

Payne escaped from the school last Tuesday. His whereabouts is unknown. Smith is still serving at the school.

EXECUTION OF EX-KING ASKED

Horia Sima, chief of the Iron Guards, regarding the latter's representation in the Antonescu regime, which won dictatorial powers before Carol's abdication yesterday.

It was decided that members of the Gigitur cabinet will take the oath of allegiance to King Michael today and that this government will remain in office, nominally at least, until northern Transylvania, ceded to Hungary, has been evacuated by Romanian troops.

Evacuation of the area will be complete about September 15, by which time Antonescu will have chosen all members of his projected government, which he will then head as dictator and "leader of the state."

Carol's abdication was followed by riotous Iron Guardist demonstrations, in which agitators howled for arrest and execution of the ex-king. In Bucharest Carol's whereabouts and even his safety were something of a mystery.

Most of Sawyer's speech was devoted to urging Democrats to support President Roosevelt for a third term.

"Tradition" Discounted

At the conclusion of his talk, Sawyer introduced the principal speaker, Congressman T. V. Smith, of Illinois, staunch New Dealer, who devoted most of his time to a review of the many reforms put into effect by the Roosevelt administration. Regarding the "tradition" against a third term for presidents, Smith said:

"It is for the American people to decide. If we have made a mistake, we shall pay for it with our political lifeblood."

Smith asserted that the Republicans also broke a tradition when they nominated at their presidential candidate Wendell L. Willkie, whom he branded as "representative of Wall Street and corporate interests."

However, he praised Willkie as an American who was "patriotic enough" to endorse Roosevelt's foreign policy.

"These are not times in which men stand on precedence and survive to stand on it," Smith added.

Kennedy in his speech urging support for Davey and Roosevelt, and advised Democrats to avoid a "smear campaign" in favor of a vote-luring battle "strictly on the issues."

In opening the convention, J. Freer Bittling, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, also appealed for harmony by calling on delegates to "go forth and present a united front."

U. S. Senator Vic Donahey, who plans to retire from political life this year, sent his greetings to the convention in a telegram in which he urged delegates to "move forward with a united front."

other persons were injured. Firemen and ambulances rushed to the scene, caring for the injured and extinguishing the fire, although hours later palls of smoke still floated over the city.

A semi-official summary of the raids on Berlin and elsewhere in Germany stated that only a few British planes penetrated the Reich, and that part of these flew over southeastern Germany.

It added that anti-aircraft batteries forced British planes which appeared over Potsdam and Spandau, west of Berlin, to turn back. Similar attacks near Magdeburg, Hanover and in the Ruhr area also were beaten off, it was claimed.

"At midnight," the statement said, "12 British planes penetrated Germany from Holland at intervals of five or ten minutes. Some of these pierced the Berlin air defenses, flew over the city and planlessly dropped bombs."

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Massed German night raids against London and various towns in northwestern and northeastern England were announced today as Nazi airmen pounded away relentlessly in their grim struggle to win mastery of the air over Britain.

An official British announcement said that up to 11:30 p. m. yesterday 45 enemy planes had been destroyed while only 19 British fighting planes were lost, and pilots of 10 of these planes were safe.

While London experienced its fifty-first air raid of the war—a night time attack in which scores of bombs fell on the capital and some exploded near crowds leaving a movie theatre—German bombers ranged far and wide over England.

High explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped over a wide area of northeastern England. One raider, flying low, circled one town a dozen times, dropping more than 20 incendiary bombs. Fires started by these missiles were extinguished quickly.

"Night attacks concentrated on ports and airplane plants. Considerable damage was inflicted on Liverpool, Manchester and Derby and on some ports along the south coast."

"A convoyed British merchant ship of 6,000 tons was sunk by the bombs northeast of Aberdeen. Air mines were dropped off several British ports."
